Lande presents Spinner High at Design District 2019

Schijndel, June 2019 - Lande introduces the Spinner High at Design District 2019 in Rotterdam. Spinner High is an industrially designed bar stool. This height-adjustable, industrial bar stool is the latest design from up-and-coming Dutch design talent Nic Roex. From 5 to 7 June the Spinner High will be introduced for the first time at the Lande stand V80 of Design District.

Laser cut

Designer Nic Roex has not opted for a standard tubular frame for the base of the Spinner High. The frame of the bar stool consists of metal strips that are cut with a laser. Nic Roex: "Thinking from 1 technology gives you frameworks. That is why I used a different basis for this design than I did for the little Spinner. The solutions to achieve this had to come from technology. And it worked. The Spinner High is built from modern production technology: laser cutting. All parts are laser-cut, which means that all parts fit together precisely." The frame can then be powder-coated in various colors, so that the Spinner High sticks to any interior.

Designer Nic Roex

Nic Roex and Jeske Kapitein together are Studio Roex, a furniture and product design studio in Amsterdam. The designs of Studio Roex are based on existing shapes, materials and techniques. Studio Roex was previously successful with their leather vases and in 2014 won the Dutch Darling public award by Crafts Council Netherlands at the Dutch Design Week.

Tearoom of the Van Nelle Factory

Lande presents the Spinner High during Design District 2019 in the Tearoom of the Van Nelle Fabriek. This unique stand (V80) can be reached via a lift or stairs. In addition to a delicious drink and our furniture, you will find plenty of information about the architectural highlights of Rotterdam on our stand. Moreover, at Design District we work together with Interstuhl, which will also show their latest models. In addition, Interface will show various floors on our stand and the stand will be decorated with various Feltplants by Wandschappen.
